A very warm welcome back to in-studio training. It is with enthusiasm and excitement that we unveil our plans. As I'm sure you can imagine, much of our energy has been directed towards the implementation of hygiene and safety procedures. The studios may look a bit different but will certainly be filled with the same level of nurturing and professional instruction that students have come to love. We are confident that we have developed an overview that allows our students to return to in-studio training as safely as possible while enjoying the benefits of participation with their friends and teachers. Our continued commitment to artistic excellence is unwavering.

I would like to reinforce that we are monitoring government guidelines and provincial recommendations closely to implement updates as efficiently as possible. It's hard to predict what will be needed, necessary or allowed over the course of the school year but all of us at Goh Ballet will be ready to ensure that our student's love of dance and progression to the next level is supported with our full attention.

As we continue to support one another and those around us, exercise kindness, and express gratitude, I know we will have our obstacles as well as shining moments but, I look forward to embarking on this next step of the journey alongside all of you and embracing the joys of dance together.

Yours sincerely,
